Welcome

Welcome to the latest concert in the RSNO's 2023:24 Season.

Tonight's soloist is our recently appointed Principal Cello, Pei-Jee Ng, taking centre stage for the first time since officially joining the Orchestra in June. Pei-Jee first joined us in October 2021 as Guest Principal in recording sessions for an album of film music by Jerry Goldsmith and we knew we had to have him back on a permanent basis. It is always a pleasure to present opportunities for our Principals to showcase their skills as both soloists and ensemble musicians. With our Music Director Thomas Søndergård on the podium, this performance of Shostakovich's First Cello Concerto is sure to be one to remember.

A feature of Lera Auerbach's Icarus is the particularly intriguing instrument that is the theremin. Most recognisable for its eerie-sounding appearances in film and television soundtracks, it produces a fascinating sound and requires a great deal of skill to play. We toured Icarus to Salzburg in October and it is safe to say that it took the traditional European audience by surprise!

In Glasgow this weekend we have with us the young musicians of Sistema Scotland's Big Noise Govanhill sitting alongside members of the Orchestra. As they celebrate their 10th anniversary, for the first time they will also be joined by a choir of Big Noise singers for We Make a Big Noise. It has been a treat to see the progress the young musicians have made during the RSNO's partnership with Sistema Scotland and I look forward to hearing their performance of this new work.

Finally, many of you will already be aware that Giving Tuesday was earlier this week. As a charity, the RSNO needs to fundraise over £1 million each year to keep our players on stage, in schools and in communities across Scotland. If you are able, please consider donating to our Play Your Part appeal to help us to continue our mission to bring music to Scottish people of all ages. We Make a Big Noise

Big Noise Govanhill is celebrating its 10th anniversary in 2023 – and what better way to celebrate than with a song?

In March 2023, Penny Stone was invited to lead a music composition workshop with the Big Strings Orchestra, whose participants range between P6 and P7. The idea behind this was to explore their creative side and to translate that into lyrics, melody and rhythm, while reflecting our community's rich cultural diversity. The words heard in We Make a Big Noise came from our young participants, and the piece amalgamates lyrics in languages such as Turkish, Hindi, Urdu, Polish, just to name a few. At the end of the workshop, Penny took all the musical and lyrical ideas that came from the session and put them together like a jigsaw puzzle, and We Make a Big Noise was born. It was later performed by the Big Strings at our Summer Concert. The version you will hear is an arrangement developed by Seonaid Aitken, specially made for the collaboration project with the RSNO.

Penny Stone is an Edinburgh-based songleader, teacher, singer and composer. As a songleader and singing teacher, she has a breadth of experience working with community singing groups and radical music groups. Penny facilitates singing with groups of people living with shared experiences such as addiction, navigating mental health support services, and surviving violence and abuse. She has also used singing to support people living with chronic health conditions such as Parkinson's and dementia.

Seonaid Aitken is an award-winning violinist, vocalist, composer/orchestrator and BBC broadcaster from Fife. Classically trained at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London, Seonaid's orchestration work has been featured in the Richard Curtis/BBC adaptation of Roald Dahl's Esio Trot, on BBC, ITV and Starz TV series and in the National Theatre of Scotland's production Dragon. She has been commissioned by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, Edinburgh Jazz & Blues Festival, English Rock and Roll Orchestra, Celtic Connections, Children's Classic Concerts and Capella String Quartet, and for recordings by folk artists such as the Red Hot Chilli Pipers, Kim Carnie, Heidi Talbot, Boo Hewerdine, Hannah Rarity and the current MG Alba Scots Trad Award Album of the Year by Elephant Sessions. Her latest album of original music, Chasing Sakura, was longlisted for the Scottish Album of the Year Award in 2022.

Icarus

FIRST PERFORMANCE

Verbier, Switzerland, 18 July 2011

DURATION 12 minutes

I have always been fascinated by the myth of Icarus. As a child, I lived in Greece. A book of myths was my favourite. Later, the world of jealous gods and god-like humans was more real to me than the world outside my windows, full of blood-red flags (the red of the Soviet flag symbolised the blood of the heroes of the Revolution), and the Soviet-trinity portraits of Lenin–Marx–Engels with the occasional bushy eyebrows of Brezhnev looking at me from the walls of the buildings. In some ways the two worlds blurred. The world outside made much more sense through the perspective of the ancient Greek myths, where it was quite common for a power-protective god to devour all his children.

Icarus was one of my heroes (or antiheroes, depending on the interpretation) – the winged boy who dared to fly too close to the sun. The wings were made by his father, Daedalus, a skilled craftsman, who earlier in his life had designed the famous labyrinth in Crete that held the Minotaur. Daedalus was held prisoner in Crete and the wings were his only way to escape.

Daedalus warned Icarus not to fly too close to the sun or too close to the ocean, but what teenager listens to his father? Exhilarated by freedom, by his own youth, by the feeling of flight, Icarus soared higher and higher until the wax on his wings melted and he fell into the ocean.

The title Icarus was given to this work after it was written. All my music is abstract, but by giving evocative titles I invite the listener to feel free to imagine, to access their own memories, associations. ‘Icarus’ is what came to my mind, listening to this work at that time. Each time I hear the piece, it is different. What is important to me is that it connects to you, the listener, in the most individual and direct way, that this music disturbs you, moves you, soars with you, stays with you. You don’t need to understand how or why – just allow the music to take you wherever it takes you. These programme notes are a door to your imagination. The music is your guide. But it is up to you to take the step and cross the threshold.

Dmitri Shostakovich (1906-1975)

Cello Concerto No1

in E flat Major Op107

Leningrad, 4 October 1959

DURATION 29 minutes

Allegretto

Moderato

Cadenza – Attacca

Allegro con moto

‘Slava, do you really like this composition or not so much? Because if you tell me you like it, then I will dedicate it to you.’ These were apparently the words with which, in 1959, Dmitri Shostakovich offered his First Cello Concerto to a shocked and delighted Mstislav Rostropovich, his former Moscow conservatoire composition pupil, who promptly went away and memorised it in just four days.

It was perhaps inevitable that Rostropovich would be so immediately captivated. An emotionally visceral expression of anger and desperation, resignation and despair, defiance and tenderness, the Concerto encapsulates everything that both men felt towards their home country and the Soviet authorities’ persecution of any artist whose work was deemed ‘antidemocratic’ or ‘chaotic’ – as Shostakovich’s modernist music frequently was. Indeed, the angular four-note motif which first opens the work and then acts as its unifying musical material is the German musical translation of Shostakovich’s initials DSCH, which become DEsCH, or, in English, D, E flat, C and B. Add the fact that the Concerto is also a virtuosic tour de force for the soloist, and the overriding impression is of a work that from the very beginning was written with Rostropovich’s own direct, impassioned sound and phenomenal technical command in mind. Which it was, because Shostakovich penned it off the back of hearing the Sinfonia Concertante for cello and orchestra that Prokofiev completed for Rostropovich in 1951.

The Concerto’s perky opening Allegretto begins, as mentioned, with a motif built on Shostakovich’s initials, which then gets treated to all manner of repetitions and development across both this increasingly tension-filled movement and beyond. An additional stinging subtext to the motif is that it’s a sped-up, lightened-up version of a theme Shostakovich used in his 1948 film score, The Young Guard, which depicts brave young Russian soldiers being marched to their deaths by Nazi guards.

Strings alone open the Moderato – the only movement where the DSCH motif remains silent – with a subdued theme the soloist will never play. When the cello does enter it’s with a new melody. Eventually, led by the cello, the music gathers in volume and intensity, leading to the orchestra returning to its opening theme, followed by a piece of eerie magic: the cello reprising its own first Moderato melody but now up high in artificial harmonics, to the sparsest and most silent-feeling of orchestral accompaniments, celeste adding to the impression of ghostliness. Finally, an ominous timpani roll slides us seamlessly into the Cadenza movement, over which the soloist first develops material from the Moderato and then from the Allegretto.

There's again no pause between the Cadenza and the sardonic concluding Allegro con moto, which launches with the oboe leading the way. Once more, the DSCH motif is everywhere, initially through new thematic material, but later in its original first-movement guise. Eventually the music is cut off, seemingly mid-flow, by seven timpani strokes.

RSNO Connections

The Scottish National Orchestra (as the RSNO then was) first played Shostakovich's Cello Concerto No1 on 26 January 1962, just three years after Shostakovich himself had attended a concert given as part of the 1959 Edinburgh International Festival, during which the Orchestra gave the UK premiere of his Festive Overture. The photograph shows the composer with conductor Alexander Gibson, with SNO leader Sam Bor in the background.

The 1962 performance of the First Cello Concerto was given by Amaryllis Fleming, who had come to the attention of the wider public when she was chosen by Sir John Barbirolli to play the Elgar Concerto at a London Prom in 1955. She was the half-sister of author Ian Fleming, who mentions her in one of his James Bond short stories, The Living Daylights.

Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov (1844-1908)

Scheherazade

Op35

FIRST PERFORMANCE

St Petersburg, 3 November 1888

DURATION 47 minutes

1. The Sea and Sinbad's Ship
2. The Tale of the Kalendar Prince
3. The Young Prince and the Young Princess
4. Festival at Baghdad – The Sea – The Ship is wrecked upon a Rock surmounted by a Bronze Warrior

It is possible that Rimsky-Korsakov was influenced by Borodin's opera Prince Igor, especially the exotic, oriental character of its Polovtsian scenes, when he conceived the idea of Scheherazade. According to The Arabian Nights: Tales from the 1,001 Nights, the Sultan Schariar is convinced that all women are false and vows to put to death each of his wives after one night. Scheherazade saves her own life by entertaining her husband with colourful tales – a feat of storytelling which she sustains for a thousand and one nights. Entranced by these stories, the Sultan continually postpones the execution of Scheherazade and finally abandons his initial vow.

Rimsky-Korsakov described Scheherazade as 'separate, unconnected episodes and pictures from The Arabian Nights', resisting 'a too definite programme'. Nevertheless, modern editions of the score spell out the specific images, with the movement headings as listed here.

The suite opens with a bold, robust theme representing the Sultan. With the entry of the solo violin, accompanied by harp, we hear the theme associated with Scheherazade. This violin melody strongly resembles a theme from Tamara by Balakirev. The tempo changes to Allegro and immediately a rocking figure is established in the lower strings, suggesting the surging of the waves. Above this, the violins play a lyrical version of the opening. The effectiveness of this seascape reminds us that the composer had served as an officer in the Russian Navy for several years. The rocking/surging figure, later modified, is maintained throughout much of the movement. Although other melodic material is introduced, this movement is dominated by the melodies already described, which the composer resourcefully varies and inventively re-orchestrates with a strong sense of colour typical of the Russian Romantics. Following a big climax based on the Sultan's theme, the movement ends peacefully.

The second movement, The Tale of the Kalendar Prince, begins with Scheherazade's theme – a musical equivalent of 'Once upon a time' – before a new melody is played by solo bassoon then oboe. Originally the Kalendars were nomadic monks, but the one in this story turns out to be a nobleman in disguise. When the violins adopt the new theme, Rimsky-Korsakov adds the indication grazioso (gracefully). This is just one of numerous examples, throughout the work, of the composer's subtle changes to the character of a melody. A dramatic interruption heralds fanfare-like passages for second trombone and muted trumpet, leading to a highly imaginative piece of orchestration – a clarinet recitative over the free strumming of pizzicato strings. A delightful scherzo-like section follows, showing some influence of Queen Mab from Berlioz's Romeo and Juliet. A return to the previous sequence, now with solo bassoon accompanied by the strumming effect, leads to the concluding section of the movement, with a final acceleration.

The seductive third movement begins with a sumptuous violin melody characterising the Prince, the Princess' theme being subsequently introduced by solo clarinet. Rimsky-Korsakov's delicate use of the tambourine in the accompaniment to the Princess' theme is typical of his masterly percussion writing throughout the suite. The sustained flow of lyrical invention is briefly interrupted by a reminder of Scheherazade in the usual scoring for violin solo with harp.

Rimsky-Korsakov opens the finale by once again juxtaposing the music of the Sultan with Scheherazade herself. A fantastically colourful depiction of the Baghdad Festival follows – music both brilliant and inventive. Eventually the Sultan's theme is majestically recalled above the surging seascape accompaniment (now more turbulent) from the first movement, leading to the shipwreck. A stroke on the gong heralds the closing section of the piece, a gradual calming which is followed by the final recall of solo violin with harp. Scheherazade's storytelling ability has saved her life. As the American classical music critic Michael Steinberg (1928-2009) wrote: 'This is going to be the first secure night's sleep the lady has had in almost three years.'

Sistema Scotland

Sistema Scotland is the charity that delivers the Big Noise social change and music education programmes, working with over 3,500 children and families to improve lives and strengthen communities across Scotland. Its immersive and long-term Big Noise programmes use music and nurturing relationships to help children and young people fulfil their potential. At Big Noise the symphony orchestra becomes a community which supports young people to gain an invaluable range of life skills. Independent evaluation shows that Big Noise supports children to improve their learning, wellbeing and confidence, bringing communities together and paving the way for positive futures. The programmes are delivered by inspirational staff musicians who act as role models and mentors, and foster supportive, long-term relationships.

Big Noise Govanhill was launched in Glasgow in 2013 and the programme currently engages around 1,250 participants. This includes babies and toddlers in Little Noise, and nursery and primary school-aged children at its partner primary schools St Bride's, Holy Cross, Annette Street and Cuthbertson, as well as older pupils from Holyrood Secondary School and Shawlands Academy. Big Noise Govanhill also runs a community orchestra for adults within the community to learn an instrument and perform together.

Please support Big Noise Govanhill by visiting www.makeabignoise.org.uk or by scanning the QR code.

Big Noise Govanhill is delivered by Sistema Scotland with support from a range of public partners, trusts, foundations and individuals. In addition to Big Noise Govanhill, Sistema Scotland also runs programmes in the targeted communities of Big Noise Raploch & Fallin (Stirling), Torry (Aberdeen), Douglas (Dundee) and Wester Hailes (Edinburgh).

Supporting the RSNO

I am honoured and extremely proud to be Music Director of the RSNO. It is through the continued generosity of you, our friends, donors and supporters, that we can continue to achieve and realise the most ambitious goals of the Orchestra.

One of the wonders of the RSNO is how it brings high-quality music not only to concert halls, but to the wider community. From hospital settings to care homes, from our Astar app for families with newborns to our National Schools Concert Programme, our music touches so many lives in Scotland and beyond. Your support is the cornerstone of all that we do, as it allows us to continually build and develop.

Thank you for being part of this wonderful Orchestra's journey, as we adapt and grow towards a bright future.

Thomas Søndergård
MUSIC DIRECTOR, RSNO

RSNO Benefactors

RSNO Benefactors are beacons of philanthropic inspiration, providing truly transformative financial support to the Orchestra that enables us to build and deliver long-term strategic plans. Benefactors share the RSNO's vision for orchestral music and work with us to drive the organisation forward, helping us to realise our future plans and ambitions.

RSNO Conductors' Circle

The RSNO Conductors' Circle is an inspirational group of individual supporters at the heart of the RSNO's Individual Giving programme. Our members' annual philanthropic gifts enable us to realise the Orchestra's most ambitious goals. Conductors' Circle members support inspirational concert performances for our audiences alongside transformational education programmes in communities across Scotland, via our ground-breaking initiative Music for Life.

The RSNO is very grateful for the continued support of its Conductors' Circle:

Patron Programme

CHAIR PATRON

From musical activities in schools with the musicians of the future to working in community venues across Scotland, as a Chair Patron you are enabling RSNO musicians to explore the many facets of their art and the positive impact it has on people's lives. Supporting an individual musician puts you at the heart of the RSNO family. You're connected directly to the musicians on stage and get to enjoy privileged behind-the-scenes access. RSNO musicians truly appreciate our Chair Patrons and enjoy developing personal relationships with our supporters.

NEW WORKS PATRON

The RSNO is dedicated to bringing new works and outstanding new talent to audiences across Scotland. Our New Works Patrons contribute a significant legacy to orchestral music that extends beyond the RSNO, providing new music for orchestras and audiences around the world – for generations to come.

We are also grateful to those who give but wish to remain anonymous.

If you would like more information or would like to discuss how you can become part of the RSNO Family of Supporters, please contact Jenny McNeely, Head of Individual Giving and Partnerships, at jenny.mcneely@rsno.org.uk

We would like to thank all those who continue to generously support the RSNO's Play Your Part Appeal.

Musical Memories

Leave a gift to the RSNO and ensure future generations can create their own Musical Memories of the Royal Scottish National Orchestra.

We all have special Musical Memories. It could be learning to play an instrument when you were a child, or a special piece of music that just left you breathless the first time you heard the Orchestra play it. Maybe it was seeing a soloist you had always wanted to hear, or just a great concert shared with friends. Memories such as these make music such an important part of our lives.

Leaving a gift to the RSNO in your will is the single most important way you can help us to make music and to create memories. Your legacy will support the work of the Orchestra for years to come, ensuring that we can continue to bring great music to a new generation of children, young people and adults right across Scotland.

It is easy to leave a gift. After you have made provisions for family and friends, please think of the Orchestra.

Your gift is important to us and to everyone in Scotland who enjoys music. Contact your solicitor to draft a will or add a codicil to your current will.

If your estate is subject to inheritance tax, a gift to a charity, such as the RSNO, is tax-free and will reduce the amount of tax payable to the Government. Please ask your solicitor for details.

For more information please visit rsno.org.uk/memories

If you would like to discuss this further, please contact Torran McEwan, Individual Giving and Partnerships Officer, in the strictest confidence, at torran.mcewan@rsno.org.uk

To the many among you who have pledged to leave a gift already – thank you.
